Portfolio Description

This portfolio normally invests substantially all its assets in small company common stocks included in the S&P SmallCap 600® Index in the proportions at which they are represented in the Index. The Portfolio typically invests in a combination of small-sized companies across the growth and value spectrums. Small companies may have the opportunity to grow more rapidly than larger companies as they potentially emerge from a small- to medium-sized companies. However, they typically do not pay significant dividends to shareholders and instead, reinvest earnings back into the company and may have greater volatility (or more risk) than larger companies.

Investment Strategy/Process

This is a passively-managed portfolio, which means that the portfolio manager does not actively choose the securities that should make up the Portfolio. The S&P SmallCap 600® Index is a capitalization-weighted index of 600 U.S. small-capitalization stocks chosen for market size, liquidity, and industry representation. The Index is adjusted quarterly, and when changes to the Index occur, the portfolio manager will attempt to replicate these changes within the Portfolio. However, any such changes may result in slight variations from time to time.

Risks: Smaller, less seasoned companies often have greater price volatility, lower trading volume, and less liquidity than larger, more established companies. The Portfolio's value is influenced by a number of factors, including the performance of the broader market, and risks specific to the Portfolio's asset classes, market cap groups, and issuers. Securities markets generally tend to move in cycles with periods when security prices rise and periods when security prices decline. The use of futures contracts involves additional risks such as a loss in value in the underlying instrument, which could decrease the Portfolio's value. The Portfolio attempts to track the performance of the S&P SmallCap 600 Index but the return may not match that of the Index due to several factors including timing and expenses. In unusual circumstances, the Portfolio could experience a loss when selling portfolio securities to meet redemption requests for a variety of reasons. These and other risks are described in the prospectus.
